

France: University Francois-Rabelais Exchange

Fall and Winter Semesters

The Centre Universitaire d'Enseignement du Français aux Etudiants Etrangers (CUEFEE) is a university run center providing training in French language and cultural skills aimed at providing exchange and international students with the linguistic tools required to integrate university courses, as well as to facilitate their integration into a French social and cultural environment.

Situated near the town centre, the CUEFEE provides students with a flexible programme of French teaching. In accordance with their needs and availability students can follow a range of linguistic and cultural course containing a considerable number of electives.

Academics

Students from any Wayne State college or school are eligible to apply provided their plans are approved by the department where they expect to earn their degrees. WSU students take Liberal Arts and Sciences courses. Because many of the classes are taught in French, students should have a basic understanding of French language. The exchange can last either one or two semesters, although students strongly are urged to consider staying for two semesters is possible.
